

Beca Resilience – are you ready?

Resilience is more than just having a plan. Resilient organisations bounce back quickly from disruption—maintaining (and even growing) their competitive advantage. They understand and protect against today’s risks, and get ready for tomorrow’s challenges. They not only survive, but thrive when disruption or adversity hits.

● PEOPLE

Do your people know what to do in an emergency? Is your organisation ready for the future?

Resilient organisations invest in the resilience of their people. Their emergency response plans are robust and exercised, and their people are informed, confident, and ready to perform during disruption. A resilient organisation is ready for and embraces change-championing wellbeing and a thriving organisational culture.

● OPERATIONS

Do you know what your most important functions are? How long will it take to get your operations up and running?

Resilient organisations know what their critical functions are and have confidence they will be restored quickly in the face of disruption. They understand the impact on their operations and customers—minimising this through deliberate, understood and owned business continuity plans.

● INFORMATION AND TECHNOLOGY

Are your systems and data protected? How long can your organisation function without technology?

Resilient organisations understand the criticality of technology (and its vulnerabilities) intimately. The value of information is understood and protected appropriately. IT systems are built with resilience-in-design, and are supported by robust, tested Disaster Recovery plans.

● INFRASTRUCTURE

How will your infrastructure fare in an event? Are your critical assets protected?

Resilient organisations are supported by resilient built infrastructure. Threats from seismic events and climate change are understood, as is the impact of man-made disruption. Critical infrastructure is protected and event impact information is received in real-time. Key assets are secure and monitored remotely, with assessment response plans in place to enable expedient access post-event.

Resilience has been at the heart of Beca’s services for nearly a century. We provide right-sized and relevant resilience services that make a difference. Come and talk to us if you want to become a more resilient organisation.
